Cadets land at Camp Atterbury

Cadets from around the nation arrived at Camp Atterbury today. After a swift In-Processing, approximately 100 CAP and Naval JROTC cadets were formed into flights. There are several Basic flights and one Advanced Training School (ATS) flight. Immediately, cadets are instructed on how to properly SOP (Standard Operating Procedure) their bunk and barrack and also how to succeed together as a flight.

After a brief introduction from the executive staff, cadets performed an opening formation, evening PT, and ended the day.

Mitch Daniels Barracks

Throughout the week, cadets will use the “North Complex” barracks to learn, drill, develop teamwork and have fun. The “North Complex” barracks, or the Mitch Daniels Barracks, was dedicated on April 29, 2015 by Maj. Gen. R. Martin Umbarger, the Adjutant General of the Indiana National Guard. During the dedication ceremony, Maj. Gen. Umbarger said, “Special forces, civilian law enforcement and first responders, all branches of our military, as well as militaries of other countries, train here regularly, they have some of the best possible resources this country can provide.”

Camp Atterbury Museum

Camp Atterbury has a museum! It is located in the Camp Atterbury Welcome Center on Hospital Road, on the right side of the road just before Durbin Street. Admission to the museum is FREE.

COMING UP: Day One will bring:

- Academics
- Flights
- Leadership
- Drill

Follow encampment on Indiana Wing social media.

Starting at 9am this morning, the cadets have started arriving! This afternoon the cadets were welcomed to encampment by the Executive Encampment Staff and the Indiana Wing Commander, Col. Phil Argenti. They were then evaluated on their ability to perform drill movements and their knowledge of Civil Air Patrol Leadership and Aerospace. This is done in order to track their progress and learning throughout the week. Cadets will be learning how to properly assemble their barracks and make their bunks this evening as well. Coming up this week: orientation rides, and much more! Stay tuned!
